Edit Prices

For all applicable commission options, this is my policy for edits;

- Sketch Stage:
  - Small changes are free.
  - The first major edit is free; additional major edits will incur an editing fee.
- Final Artwork Stage:
  - Small adjustments are free.
  - Large edits (such as a total redraw) may result in additional fees, up to the full cost of the commission.

I will determine what counts as a major/minor edit on a case-by-case basis, but things like changing the color of a hat would be minor vs. changing the position of a character which would be major.

"Complexity"

I find it difficult to quantify the complexity of an art piece based solely on things like extra characters, backgrounds, etc, which is why I've provided a range of prices within which I expect the price of a commission to fall into.

I adjust the price based on how complex I think the piece will be. If you commission me for a single character on a blank background, that will be cheaper than several characters on a complex background. If you want a character sitting on a chair, that will probably be cheaper than a character getting triple penetrated while doing a kickflip.

I've included some examples so you have an idea of how much your commission might cost. Not every kind of commission has an example yet, but I am slowly adding more over time. Once I complete more commissions, the examples will have specific prices.

If I think your idea is more complex than the standard options, e.g. large groups, crazy complex backgrounds, multiple scenes, then I'll let you know and we can discuss what price seems appropriate.
